Mustang Club Meets At Stone Mountain

Mustang Club of America's second annual Grand National Meet—featuring 1965-1973 Ford Mustangs and Shelys on display, free to the public—will be at Stone Mountain Park on Aug. 5-7 in the main parking lot.

"So far, we have entries from 20 states and are expecting about 200 cars for the weekend show," said Jim Osborn of Decatur, club secretary.

Collectors are becoming increasingly interested in these cars, according to Osborn, dubbing them "special interest" cars—since they are not yet antiques and miss the new car category. A Mustang recently sold for about $22,000 in a Reno, Nev. auction.

Show judging, beginning at noon Saturday, will concentrate on original Mustangs or Shelys and modified Mustangs. In the original category—coupes, convertibles and fastbacks will be compared to their condition when new. Best of show (driven) and (non-driven) prizes will also be awarded.

Entrants registering Friday noon to 6 p.m. will be treated to an 8 p.m. picnic at the park. Extended entry registration is Saturday morning, during a car-parts swap-meet until noon. An evening banquet at Stone Mountain Inn will conclude Saturday's show and judging. Awards will be given Sunday morning, with cars on display until 2 p.m. Sunday.

Anyone owning a 1965 through 1973 Mustang or Shelby interested in entering the show may contact Jim Osborn at 241-5158. Gary Goddard of Covington is president of the club and Ken Yeager of Decatur, vice president. The group has 600 members nationwide, in Canada, and Australia.

MUSTANG - THE 50 MILLION DOLLAR BABY

Experimental cars and dream designs are produced by the thousands each year with high hopes by the designers that eventually their Models would survive long enough to reach production. Only a selected few ever reach the production stage and of these that do even fewer ever make instant sales smashers. You can count those that did on about two fingers with the Mustang being one of them.

There was something unusual about the Mustang since it had basically the same running gears as the Falcon. It was a totally new body design however, which was coupled to all new concepts in automotive marketing. A youth oriented family sports car.

The Mustang concept originated from a tiny experimental car that could be driven on a kitchen table. This model was first exhibited at the U. S. Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, New York, in the fall of 1962.

The overall presentation was the result of a very young management team during 1961 which was headed by Lee A. Iacocca who served as Division General Manager at Ford. The mood of the Nation at that time was very youthful and buyers sought out items for buying which had sporty flair. A very good time to introduce the Mustang.

Why such an investment in a totally new car? Ford had suffered a shocking loss of sales because of the sheer lack of a sporty product. There was an increasing gap between the age of Ford and Chevy buyers and the resulting conclusion was that Ford was simply not attracting its share of the growing youth market---something had to be done.

Things were placed in motion quickly and by late 1961, a task force of engineers, planners, and designers, had put together some basic parameters for the car. It was decided that it could not exceed 180 inches in length, weigh more than 2,500 pounds, or cost more than $2,500.00.

The basic project was speeded a bit by Gene Bordinat, Ford's designing chief, who staged design competition between the company's three design studios. They were given only two weeks to come up with actual clay models of what they felt the new car should look like.

When the models were completed, the winning entry was the one submitted by the chief stylist of Ford Division Studio, Joseph Oros. The production model looked very near the same as the clay model when it was presented first at the New York World's Fair.

According to the chief stylist, a list of do's and don't's were made before the actual work was begun. The car had to be unique and could not resemble any other car. Probably the most unparalleled feat in auto design history. The actual car remained essentially unchanged from the clay model.

With all the excitement at Ford, public introduction was set at April 19, 1964 - opening week at the World's Fair. The first production model came off the assembly line on March 9, 1964. The Ford people dubbed the car as being peculiar since everyone at Ford was so excited about it. The little Mustang baby received several awards for design excellence, some of the most notable from the famous New York jeweler, Tiffany & Co., and from the Industrial Designers Institute.

No car has ever before been so successful. Ford dealerships were swamped with visitors. Some dealers had to limit show room crowds by locking the doors at intervals. A Mustang was used as a pace car for a stock car race in Huntsville, Alabama and 9,000 fans jumped the wall to surround the car delaying the race for a hour. Within four months of introduction, more than 100,000 Mustangs had been sold and the car had reached the top five in auto sales volume. The first weekend of introduction more than 22,000 were ordered. Over 4 million people visited Ford showrooms that one weekend.

Ford spent more than 10 million in National Advertising to the public. No advertising media was omitted. The car was well received. The total spent from development to production exceeded 50 million dollars. It was a gamble that continues to pay off very big for Ford.

What caused the Mustang mania? Basically, the car was sharp looking - absolutely beautiful to be exact - and offered options that provided for performance, luxury, and economy. All of this was offered without costing near the price of comparable foreign sports cars. Several auto makers leaped on the mania band wagon with "sporties" of their own. Of these were Javelin, Cougar, Charger, and other since these. None have come near the Mustang's success story. Even today, Mustang remains to be the right little baby for millions of people ---

Yes, Ford's 50 million dollar baby still is our pet.

Moreover, Mustang Clubs sprang up by the hundreds - weekends were filled with excitement as the hopped up 289 V8'S dominated their class at the drag strips. They were smashing performers, even ushered in a new type of racing called Can AM.

The time has almost dawned upon those of us who love the original ponies, thanks to Detroit, when either we must take drastic steps to preserve the original breed or, bump them into the category of the dying and neglected species and just allow it to become extinct. That's Detroit's definition of progress and they too have suffered for the mistake. Since they changed the baby, sales plummeted. What they considered progress was actually a regression and the sales figures will substantiate this.

We are still proud of our 50 million dollar baby and as the Mustang Club of America, we intend to save it.
